Hey Noah,

I have made up my mind to pursue Masters in AI in Ireland since I have already paid for the tuition fees and I will, unfortunately, not be able to work for hard.coded in India.

However, if there is an opportunity to report from Ireland (even as a consultant or on contract) do let me know.

Best Regards,
Dylan

Hey dylan,

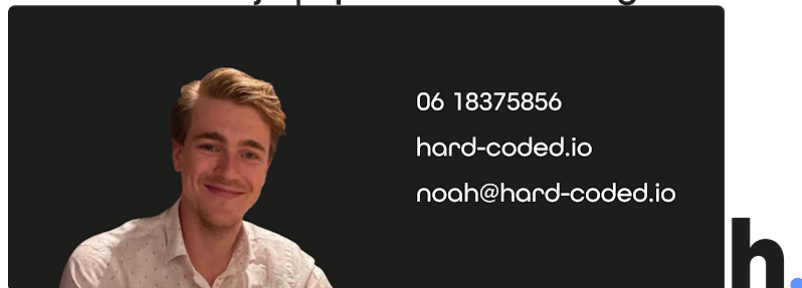

Good choice! Enjoy your time in Ireland and if you want to visit the Netherlands your welcome to visit hard.coded. When a new opportunity pops up will let you know!

Hi Dylan,

I spoke to Milan. He foresees an issue with you working 40 hours a week next to your master's and also with the remote issue. If you can argue that it will work, he is willing to consider it. Either way, you are welcome to join Hard.Coded/Brandhub when you are done with your master's. So around that time, get in contact with us and we can look for a fitting opportunity for you.

Best regards,
Noah

Hello Noah,

I was considering 20 hours a week rather than 40. But on second thoughts, even at 20 hours a week, I concur with Milan's point of view. After due consideration I realize that I might end up doing justice neither towards hardcoded nor towards my studies.

Given that I felt very comfortable with all of you who interviewed me, and an opportunity to re-evaluate working for Hard.Coded/Brandhub in future, I look forward to getting back in touch with you once I get my master's degree.

Thanks once again and my best wishes to all.

Regards
Dylan
